afrisam_sa Originally designed by MEIRING & NAUDÉ in 1958, the University of Pretoria's 'Boukunde' building exhibits a brutalist off-shutter concrete shell. Even with a refurbishment in 2016, newly introduced elements flow seamlessly into the historical fabric of the building showing nothing but respect for the original vision.

afrisam_sa Adorned by the sun's rays that hit its massive off-shutter concrete walls, the Annex building's makeover by Zenprop Property Holdings is an architectural statement for modern, oblong-shaped designs.

afrisam_sa The Silo building's cylindrical sculpture displays an exclusive exhibition that can only be seen when the sun casts shadows on the concrete floor, creating its own interpretation of an art piece.

afrisam_sa These concrete tetrapods are coastal engineering structures used to prevent erosion. Their triangular pyramid shape can dissipate the force of incoming waves, allowing the tranquil shores to remain uninterrupted.

Radisson RED V&A Waterfront, Cape Town

afrisam_sa The Radisson Red is a beautiful contemporary hotel with 252 rooms and a rooftop entertainment deck that provides patrons with wonderful views of the city and the iconic Zeitz MOCAA building. AfriSam's locally produced cement and readymix products were instrumental in the building of the Zeitz MOCAA.

afrisam_sa The Zeitz MOCAA museum doesn't only showcase art pieces that live inside it, but displays the beautiful history preserved in its walls. The concrete cylinders unveil what was once the tall historic Silo grain, while the modern glass complements the original structure's heritage and allows natural light to brighten up the interior.

afrisam_sa We agree. It truly pays tribute to its original industrial design and soul. @howlingmedia
